

How is it financed?

The prelatore of Opus Dei is financed in the same way as the dioceses and other future prelatures, that is, above all by the contributions of its own faithful and of other people who provide financial assistance for its mission.

provide financial assistance for its mission. The apostolic initiatives linked to the prelature in the areas of education, health, social work, etc. (for which the prelature assumes responsibility only in what relates to their Christian vigor) are financed in the same way as other institutions of that type in each country.
